VFX and Post Production Media Insurance

The threat of being hacked or accidentally suffering a security breach can have far reaching consequences for both your reputation and the ability to deliver on your contracted obligations. Traditional insurance cover can exclude the specialist needs of post-production media companies. Our policy is designed to meet these needs.

Our product has been designed for post-production media companies including visual effects, app and game developers and online content creators. We provide flexible cover for companies specialising in offline or online editing and digital content production, offering coverage from the cutting room floor to the finished digital product.

This product combines traditional commercial insurance with extra cover to help meet the costs relating to security breaches, reputational damage, additional expenses incurred to meet contractual obligations, loss or damage to technical equipment, remedial work by your employees and business interruption costs.
